Bilingual Education Matters

Bilingualism has many cognitive and social benefits. This talk explores the opportunities and challenges of bilingual education. While Australia has a huge potential for fostering a multilingual population, it risks being left behind Asia and Europe because of its failure to invest in language education.

Ingrid Piller, PhD, is Professor of Applied Linguistics at Macquarie University. Her research expertise is in language learning, multilingualism and intercultural communication. Ingrid blogs about her research at: www.languageonthemove.org
